'No grit' fears

'Stocks will run out if winter is severe'

By TOM MOSELEY

Grit supplies in Lancashire will run out again if there is another cold winter, bosses have warned.

County Hall has already secured more salt than last year in a bid to avoid a repeat of the shortages that left main roads in a treacherous state, and isolated rural villages.

But its winter maintenance review has confirmed that national stocks have not recovered enough to guarantee it will be able to meet demand.

And it accuses residents of having 'an unrealistically-high public expectation' about how many streets can be gritted.

Tory Tim Ashton, in charge of Lancashire's highways, said: "The principle people should realise is we can't grit every road if it's a severe winter."

The county council has promised to work more closely with parish and district councils to keep roads clear, and use equipment provided by farmers and private companies.

Parks staff will also be deployed during snowy weather to carry out road clearance.

The report also lays bare the cost to taxpayers of last year's gritting operation. During what was the coldest winter for 30 years, a total of 30,000 tonnes of salt were used, at a cost of £1.6million more than had been budgeted for.

Just over a third of the total highway network is treated from the council's 11 depots, using 48 lorries driven by 150 drivers.

The report, from the council's environment officers, said the nationwide salt shortage had 'severely affected' its ability to respond to the icy weather. And it recommends roads are not repeatedly gritted, adding: "It is an understandable reaction, particularly during extreme conditions, to repeatedly apply salt to try to clear snow as quickly as possible. This is not effective and more salt does not necessarily mean faster snow clearance."

'Best care for mum and baby is the goal'

By NEIL DOCKING

Health chiefs have enlisted East Lancashire's biggest football stars in a bid to persuade supporters it doesn't matter which town their children are born in.

A campaign has been launched to convince Rovers fans that there is nothing wrong with seeing their babies born in Burnley, as medics tell families to have their child born in the best location for mum and baby.

Under revamped services, expectant mums have been given the option of a birth at home, in a birth centre, or in a hospital setting.

However, from November there will be no births at Royal Blackburn Hospital.

Women whose medical histories mean their birth is likely to be complex, or who would prefer to give birth in hospital, will be cared for in a new £32million Lancashire Women and Newborn Centre at Burnley General Hospital.

Those expected to have 'low-risk' pregnancies will be offered a birth at home, or in one of three midwife-led birth centres, including one in the new maternity unit, one at the new health hub in Rossendale, and one at a new £900,000 building in Park Lee Road, Blackburn.

David Dunn and Graham Alexander urged football fans to put tribal rivalry to one side and make use of the 'fantastic' facilities at Blackburn Birthing Centre, which opened this week.

Clarets captain Graham Alexander said: "It's a great message and that is why both David and I are supporting it.

"No matter what your football allegiance, or the rivalry between the two teams, what is right for both sets of fans is that mum and baby get the best treatment.

"Hopefully people will take that on board and do the right thing."

Simon Hill, associate medical director for family care and consultant gynaecologist, said the trust wanted "to overcome the historic Blackburn and Burnley divide".

He said: "The presence of David and Graham at the opening of the birth centre was incredibly significant."

Adam campaign website launch

By SAM CHADDERTON

The parents of a Blackburn man killed by a single punch have launched their website 'Every Action Has Consequences'.

Dave and Pat Rogers have turned their grief at losing 24-year-old son Adam, after an unprovoked town centre assault, into a positive campaign to make young people think twice about their actions.

Our sister newspaper, The Lancashire Telegraph is working alongside the Rogers family to promote the initiative.

Their message has been heard as far away as Ipswich, where the council's substance misuse development officer has invited them to speak at the launch of a scheme to highlight the futility of alcohol-related violence. The website contains moving tributes from Adam's family and friends, victim impact statements, and details of the campaign's aims and charity status.

KILLED: Adam Rogers

Pat said it had been a 'long and painful process' to produce the site, with help from friend John Flanagan, but that she was 'delighted' with the result.

She said: "For me personally it has been a lot of hard work, but has helped to give me a real focus and motivation.

"It has been a particularly difficult time for me since the anniversary of Adam's death and I have found it hard to remain positive.

"Making myself work on the website has been an emotional experience.

"I feel a real sense of achievement and hope that it will give a real impetus to our campaign.

"I am also proud to be able to share some of the deeply personal statements and tributes to Adam."

Share concerns at town 'surgery'

Residents can raise concerns about their local area after a series of public meetings were launched.

The sessions will take place for people in Great Harwood in a new scheme by Hyndburn Council.

Officials will be on hand for two hours every Friday at the town's library, in Queen Street. Ann Roberts, area manager, said: "I will be in the library waiting to deal with your issues, such as fly-tipping, lighting, or litter. The list is endless."

The events run from 10am to noon.

'Rival' fan in tribute walk

By SAM CHADDERTON

A lifelong Burnley fan is going the extra mile – in support of rivals Blackburn Rovers.

Clarets supporter Olly Cutler, 32, put club allegiances to one side this week as he embarked on Alfred Wainwright's famous 'coast-to-coast' walk in memory of work colleague Rachel Tucker, who died last December.

Rachel, 35, of Spenser Street, Padiham, was a passionate Rovers fan and Olly is raising funds for local schools to buy tickets for pupils to attend Ewood Park throughout this season.

Burnley season-ticket holder of 17 seasons, Olly, from Skipton, worked at Home Loan Management, Padiham, with Rachel. He said: "Rachel was a really bubbly, larger-than-life character who lit up the room. You always knew she was in the office and it was always a source of amusement when we swapped football stories on a Monday morning. She was a single mother and left a young daughter Ebony, who is 14, so doing something for the younger generation ticks all the right boxes.

"As a season-ticket holder at Ewood Park, Rachel was a passionate Rovers supporter and her friends and family believe this to be a fitting tribute."

To help distribute the tickets, Olly has enlisted the support of Rovers' Community Trust. As well as getting to watch a Premier League game at Ewood Park, the chosen children will also receive two hours of match day coaching. "Olly's effort is going to provide a lot of pleasure for a lot of young people," said Duncan Kinloch, head of strategy and planning at the Trust.

Olly hopes to complete the 200-mile walk in 11 days and raise £2,000. To support him visit http://c2c.awardspace.co.uk

Wreckers attack another play area

By TOM MOSELEY

Another of Blackburn and Darwen's new playgrounds has been vandalised – and shocked bosses are warning they cannot afford to keep repairing it.

The play area at Bold Venture Park, Darwen, was set alight in the early hours of Saturday.

Vandals dragged a wheelie bin to the middle of the play area, damaging the flooring and four rubber toadstools installed last year as part of the £2.5m Play Pathfinder initiative.

It is the latest of a spate of attacks on new play areas. A tyre swing was burned out last month in Laburnum Road, a shelter was attacked in a playground off Burnley Road in July, and a swing was destroyed and its support posts sawn through, off Livesey Branch Road, in June.

A £50,000 play area in Newfield Drive, Higher Croft, was badly damaged by fire in October three months after it opened.

TORCHED: The remains of the play area at Bold Venture Park, Darwen

Back in April 2008, council bosses vowed to end the 'no ball games culture' after being awarded £2.5m to revamp dozens of play areas in the borough. But now they are calling on communities to be more vigilant and help protect the facilities.

Coun Michael Law-Riding, executive member for the environment, said: "We are going to struggle to repair this with the budgets being cut back. And if we can't repair them we will have to close them down. It's just mindless vandalism. People are just choosing to go out and damage this stuff. It's just crackers.

"We need help from members of the community to identify these people and tell us, and the police, who the troublemakers are."

TRIBUTES: Friends and relatives gather on the centre circle for an emotional silence in memory of Accrington Stanley fan Antony Cox, above right

Memorial to Reds fan

By TOM MOSELEY

Accrington Stanley fans paid an emotional tribute to 'one of their own' at Saturday's match at the Crown Ground.

A corner of the Sophia Khan stand was converted into a memorial for Antony Cox, who was killed on a railway line on Bank Holiday Monday.

Shirts, flowers and scarves were draped on the terrace, and his family stood in the centre circle during a minute's silence before the clash with Wycombe Wanderers.

Fans sang songs dedicated to Mr Cox and, after the game, manager John Coleman was among those who paid tribute as the lifelong fan's relatives and friends gathered in the corner of the ground to read the messages left by his friends.

The club's former winger Rory Prendergast, one of Mr Cox's favourites, also went to the game to pay his respects.

Stanley chief executive Rob Heys said: "There was a sadness that he was not there, but it was about remembering the good times, which I am sure is how Antony would have wanted us to remember him."

Reds fan and columnist on our sister newspaper the Lancashire Telegraph Stephen Lowe said: "It was tremendously emotional and a really fantastic and fitting send-off to one of our own. John Coleman pointed to the sky when he came over to the fans. Football came second, and the football family came first."

Police said the 33-year-old former Tinker and Budget landlord lay on the tracks near Church and Oswaldtwistle station as a train approached. The driver tried to stop, but Mr Cox, of Oswaldtwistle, was struck.

Garage boss' fury at yellow lines

CONCERNED: Chris Ward outside Sudell Road Motors

By CATHERINE PYE

A garage owner said he 'could be finished' if parking restrictions around his business are not lifted.

Chris Ward has run Sudell Road Motors, in Darwen, for 22 years.

But 'no unloading' limits, brought in last week because of the opening of the new Darwen Academy building across the road, mean he can no longer have parts delivered.

Council bosses say they brought in the measure following a full consultation. But Mr Ward said: "I've got to run a business, and how can I do that if I can't get the parts? It'll finish me without them. Three months ago a man from the highways department came to have a look at the road and I told him I needed a drop-off zone outside.

"Then all of a sudden workmen came along and drew up the lines and there's been a 'no unloading' sign put up against my rails.

"I've been here 22 years and for the last 18 months I've put up with a lot because of the academy building.

"There's been every road to my business dug up for weeks on end, and I've had to cancel jobs because of it."

The road restrictions, including double yellow lines, have been put in to improve safety for pupils around the school building.

Darwen mayor and Sudell councillor Paul Browne said: "I've been on to the highways department about this, because I think it's scandalous. He's going to end up losing business and that's disgusting."

George Bell, in charge of highways for the council's partner Capita Symonds, said the consultation "gave all residents and business owners the opportunity to have their say".

He said: "One of our highways officers met Mr Ward at his business premises to discuss his concerns. The officer explained the reasons for the restrictions. No verbal agreement was made as this would have a detrimental effect on the whole scheme and safety around the academy."

Help For Heroes is the charity that does exactly what it says.

And by keeping overheads low, it aims for 100per cent effectiveness – so that for every £1 donated, £1 goes directly to helping wounded servicemen and women.

All over the country, more than a million people have raised money to support members of the armed forces wounded in the service of their country.

A mammoth £63million has been donated so far, thanks to events such as sponsored cycles, sky dives, flower festivals, press-up challenges, bowls tournaments and dog shows.

The money is used by making grants which provide practical, direct support for our wounded.

To support our service personnel, The Citizen will also be donating 10per cent of the advertising money raised by this page to the fund. You, too, can make a donation to help make a difference, at www.helpforheroes.org.uk

Help for Heroes was founded by Bryn and Emma Parry three years ago, out of a desire to help wounded servicemen and women returning from Afghanistan and Iraq.

The message of the charity is simple. It's strictly non-political and non-critical. It simply wants to help, firmly believing that anyone who volunteers to serve in time of war, knowing that they may risk all, is a hero.

DESERVE BEST: Soldiers risk their lives

Excitement's aloud on TV

Kimberley Walsh found fame after appearing in Popstars: The Rivals, eventually winning a place in Girls Aloud. Since the band's hiatus, Bradford-born Kimberley, 28, has worked as a TV presenter. She is currently presenting Suck My Pop on Friday evenings on Viva.

60 SECONDS WITH ...KIMBERLEY WALSH

SUCK MY POP LAUNCHED IN JULY - WERE YOU EXCITED?
I was really excited. I've done a little bit of presenting already, but I've never had my own show before, so it's quite exciting to be in control a bit more.

WHAT MAKES SUCK MY POP STAND OUT FROM OTHER ENTERTAINMENT SHOWS?
We're trying to get away from the generic, sit-down, interview-type show, so we're trying to go out and do something with the artists, or play a game that's going to be fun for them.

WHO'S THE SHOW GOING TO APPEAL TO?
I think young teenagers through to people in their 30s. Anyone can watch it. It's very tongue-in-cheek.

WHO WOULD BE YOUR DREAM INTERVIEWEE?
I'd love to interview Beyonce. I think she's really talented and I've always had a little bit of an obsession with her.

WHEN WILL GIRLS ALOUD RETURN TO THE STUDIO AND TOUR AGAIN?
We will be back at some point. We don't know exactly when as everyone's solo projects have taken off more than we anticipated and people are enjoying doing their own things. But there are plans for the future – even though we don't know exactly when that will be. Next year we'll get together and make some plans.

Swing along to forties gig

It's time to party like it's 1949 – The Swing Commanders are heading to Burnley this week.

The outfit was formed five years ago by frontman Peter Riley, who quit his job as an occupational therapist, despite only having played in pub bands before.

The risk paid off and the six-piece became the first-ever European act to appear at one of America's most prestigious music festivals, the Legends of Western Swing Festival, in Wichita Falls, Texas.

By JEMMA HUMPHREYS

The band, made up of Simon and Rosy Williams, Gaynor Sutcliffe, Mark Warburton, and new member Siena Lloyd, play a wide repertoire of memorable music from the 1930s, 1940s, and 1950s

Their high-energy performances, vocal harmonies, and variety of musical instruments, have firmly established them as international artists on the thriving 1940s swing scene.

● The Swing Commanders – Burnley Mechanics, Friday September 10. Tickets £11 from the box office on 01282 664400.
